SUNDAY, OCTOBER 19th 1862

The Cordoba Railway.

Perhaps the strongest characteristic in Argentines is a slowness to appreciate whatever is beneficial to their public or private interests.—Every improvement of which the country boasts has been, in a measure, forced upon them by foreigners, after a probationary process of some years. The wool industry of Buenos Ayres has in a short time, risen from zero to one half of our exports and the native estancieros have learned from Irish shepherds, whom they affect to despise, the philosopher's stone which converts their cattle-farms into gold fields. In like manner the water-supply for our city, and cultivation of cotton throughout the Republic will come in the course of time, and if we hasten such useful projects though only by a month, a week or even a day, we shall have conferred a benefit on humanity. It is true that our colleagues take up some subjects which we have already laboured to advance; but we regret that the Tribuno and Nacional pillage from us by wholesale and attempt to claim the merit of having initiated such enterprises.

Cotton is peculiarly our property, for we incurred the epithets of "lunatic", and "humbugger" at the outset, and two of our colleagues subsequently stepped in to win the laurels, unmindful of the Standard. The Cordova railway has also been a favorite theme of ours, and the Nacional with the coolest effrontery copied out our London information from Mr. Wheelright, without acknowledging our paper. He states he has seen the two letters—this is false. The letters were lying in our desk at the time: the truth is he suffered the news and the Revista is equally guilty in receiving the stolen property But such frauds will not discourage our efforts for the country.

Mr Wheelright's letters speak confidently of beginning the works soon. He insists on the grant of lands along the intended line, and this we consider to be the secret of its success. The Illinois central railway is one of the greatest in the universe and the "owners" who contracted it became farmers also on a large scale, raising up agricultural population, and creating large centres of population, where formerly there was a desert waste. The lands of the Cordoba and Santa Fe are at present valueless: were they to sell at 5 dollars a-piece they would be the grant, then, is a delusion.

Mr. W. is a mere theorist, when he tells us that in a few years the working and speed of the locomotive will not be considered as much value in Liverpool.

Thus the English benefactor of the Pacific coast says to Argentines—"I wish to fix your good qualities, to raise private property, to a fabulous figure, and endow you with the Nation with a power superior to its mere natural advantages. Can we suppose for a moment that there is a patriot in the country who will not laud these stones with exultation? Are there not more interesting than the "Nacional" correspondence (which extracts from the "Money market review," cutting off the reference to the "Standard") and the dramatic letters which Hector Varela can write until he becomes a Shakespeare of the Pachos?

The foolish pride of our people is so inebriated then to meet a foreigner requiring the Co. to sell the railway to Government whenever the latter should give them 20 per cent over the outlay, and this has alarmed Mr. Wheelright, who thinks only reasonable, that no one would venture a million and a half sterling for such gains. But we beg him to rest assured there is no danger that the Argentine republic will be unable or unwilling to purchase such a gigantic enterprise. We cannot find funds to finish our Plaza Martre, we are too lazy to pump water or drain the city, we find railways when not in request by foreigners, and we are so capable of making or buying a railway to Cordoba, as of running a telegraph wire to the Moon.

Mr. Wheelright promises that the Cordoba line will not stop till it reaches the Pacific, and we cannot confirm the prediction. We suppose he will be the blessings derived from a opening of its first section, that the upper provinces would be forthwith in the same condition as the Province of Buenos Ayres to the foot of the Andes, and the growing intercourse with Chile and Brazil would eventually make the two republics in a more lasting bond of union than any diplomatic relations.

Thus, at length, we shall see the enterprise of this model Englishman unite the Atlantic with the Pacific; and his name will become powerful with Argentines, whose prosperity as it is with the commerce of Perú and Chile. His eminent success in the Pacific steam Navigation is the best guarantee that the letters he produced are not a vague promise or dreamy speculation, and we hope to see the day when the fiery messenger of Peace shall career across the continent from Valparaiso to B. Ayres, bearing with it the intelligence, that Mr. Wheelright has conquered those lustnesses of Nature which were inaccessible to San Martin, and waking the praises of two republics, in honor of the victor, "dalle una al otro mar."

The Last Row of Swanee.

On Friday night, the Victoria Theatre was crowded with, probably, the most select native and foreign audience ever assembled within the walls of that theatre. It was not difficult to perceive the intention of the Directors of the girl, of captivating beauty, charming voice, and singing one of Moore's immortal melodies, in a treat in any country, how much more so in a retired, quiet situation where our Italian singers, Mr. Rosati, and Mr. Bochet, as the duo are long so well known and admired, and mixed with a duet by Bochet, as the duo are long so well known and admired, and mixed with a duet by Bochet, as the duo are long so well known and admired, and mixed with a duet by STEAM DYE WORKS.

A sure cure for the Scab in Sheep in Shepherd's Dip, should be without it.

This valuable preparation which is now used by nearly all the wool growers of the country, is a concentrated ointment, one pound of which will destroy ten pounds of tobacco, retaining in this compound all the properties of the raw material. The only labor required to render the wash ready for use, is to stir two pints into the quantity of cold water, needed for the number of sheep to be cured.

The most satisfactory recommendations of its perfect safety, simplicity and utility, from the principal Estancieros of this country may be had on application to the undersigned. Full directions for use are given on each tin.
